'Tour de West Sac': explaining some of West Sac

Citizens on two wheels check out what's happening in town – and what's on the drawing board

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Close to 50 people joined West Sacramento city councilman Chris Ledesma Saturday for the "Tour de West Sac," an informal bike tour of some of the town's new and soon-to-be-new highlights.

The group departed from Nugget market in Southport. Using the Clarksburg Branch Line Trail and local roads, they visited the bridge now under construction on South River Road, the Bridge District, Broderick restaurant, Sycamore Trail and Bike Dog Brewery.

The News-Ledger met up with the group at the construction site of the Michael McGowan Bridge, a span that will soon cross the barge canal on South River Road.

Ledesma explained to the crowd that the land was formerly owned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and the $12 million bridge will first connect both halves of South River Road across the waterway, and later will connect with Village Parkway.

"It will be another arterial from north to south," said Ledesma. "It will have bike lanes on it, and we are doing plumbing and wiring to accommodate a streetcar."

CHRIS LEDESMA (towards right, with backpack) makes a point about the Michael McGowan Bridge now under construction on South River Road. The bridge will first connect South River Road, and later connect with Village Parkway in Southport. (News-Ledger photo)

Ledesma also made reference to a long-awaited new bridge the other direction: one running east to west, connecting West Sacramento to I-5 and Sacramento. He said that such a bridge – long opposed by Sacramento leaders – is now in the works, and this planned "Broadway Bridge" will probably land north of the bridge site, near where a Clark Pacific cement plant tower near stands.

The plant's site, the acreage near the McGowan Bridge and much of the rest of the city's industrial riverfront will eventually transition to more urban-style uses, said Ledesma.

And as a note of trivia, Ledesma added that West Sacramento-based Clark Pacific is the same company now fabricating pieces of the striking new "spaceshippy" headquarters for Apple in Cupertino. Clark Pacific also has a plant in Woodland.

After the brief chat at the bridge, Ledesma and his informal tour group – men, women, children and babies in trailers – pedaled north on South River Road, heading under the freeway for the rest of their tour.

Civic honors for college branch, brewpub and others

The annual "State of the City" address on May 21 lacked any major new public policy announcements. But it did offer some perspective on sweeping changes now working their way through a growing West Sacramento.

In his keynote address to the dinner crowd inside city hall, Mayor Christopher Cabaldon touted several current achievements as well as some on the horizon. Plans to replace the old I Street Bridge are truly underway, he said. And the new urban farm on C Street is an example of paying homage to the city's identity as a planned "food hub" as well as an example of using "infill" land for new purposes.

West Sacramento's current building boom is not one that looks outward, said Cabaldon. It's a boom taking place within current boundaries.

He talked about the city's new growth spurt, bringing new urban development to the riverfront and "Bridge District" area north of the freeway. Alongside Raley Field are coming

Bike Dog Brewery -- a minipub founded by several employees of a regional government agency -- received a city award for improving the town's community pride. Mayor Christopher Cabaldon touted the founders as an example of entrepreneurship, as well as an example of a local government success story. City staff adjusted local zoning laws to help the brewery happen.

Killer's parole denied

The Yolo County District Attorney's office has announced that Daniel Robinson, a 38-year old from West Sacramento, has been denied parole in his first hearing after 18 years in prison.

Robinson was convicted of second-degree murder in 1996 for killing 16-year old Robert Castro in a gang-related drive-by shooting, said the office of D.A. Jeff Reisig. Robinson and his friends, members of the 29th Street Crips gang, shot Castro because they felt disrespected by the Broderick Boys gang. Castro was on bike at the time.

Castro's parents and other relatives were at the parole hearing in Salinas Valley Prison, as was Chief Deputy D.A. Jonathan Raven and victim services advocate Silvia Aceves.

Commissioner Perry Turner, ruling against parole, said Robinson continued to have problems with alcohol and violence while in prison, said the D.A.'s office.

Local election results will be at www.WestSac.com

Results from yesterday's state primary election were in too late for today's News-Ledger print deadline.

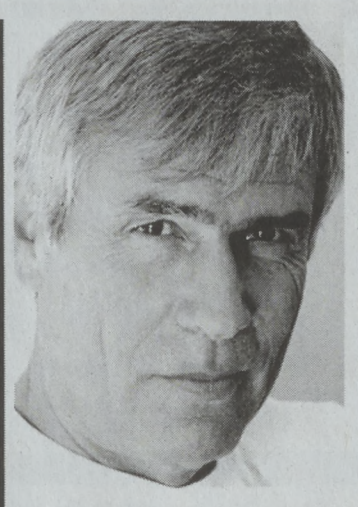
Graduation: both overrated and fondly recalled

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

Another high school graduation week is upon us. Seventeen and eighteen-year old students all over the nation will be marching down their respective aisles, having endured weeks of practicing and hearing "Pomp and Circumstance" being played over and over again by young bands not always gentle on the ear. Our sons and daughters will have also tried hard to write down something funny and memorable in all of their friends' yearbooks, told a few select and grateful teachers that they are actually going to miss them, collected as much cold-hard-cash as they possibly could from all their relieved relatives, and spent at least one night absolutely determined to party-hearty until the sun came up.

No more will they be spending their noon hour in a quad or a socially segregated school cafeteria where the cheerleaders, athletes, intellectuals, those in school government, and even the hoodlums all had their special little set-aside areas where they gathered to eat and talk over their common problems and experiences. And maybe best of all, no longer will the hard-core unpopular, that unfortunate group of outcasts represented by the different, the soon to be really successful, the shy and introspective, and those too smart and wise even for the intellectuals, have to put up with a daily existence all too often defined by how cruel and insensitive young people can be to each other.

For my money, I have always thought that high school graduation (and the four often torturous years which lead up to it) is the most over-rated, and yet somehow most fondly remembered, rite of passage in a person's youth. And when I hear someone my age say that their high school years were the best time of their life, I secretly question what kind of sadly uneventful life they must have lived.

Anyway, I was talking to a longtime friend about all this the other day and she said, "But don't you at least enjoy going to your class reunions?"

"I've only been to one," I answered, "and the most interesting part was that all the beauty I had remembered the popular girls having had somehow faded, while many of the unpopular girls had grown up to be really attractive, both inside and out. I think that may be one of those little jokes that God likes to play on us from time to time. Oh, and it was also interesting to see how most of the really tough (mean is probably the more accurate word) guys I went to high school with seemed to have disappeared from the face of the earth. I think what might have happened to them is that once everyone had graduated and got a real life, they all ended up on more or less the same street corner, with no job or future and no one to impress and beat on except each other."

"You know," said my friend, "I think guys and girls experience high school in very different ways. Me and most of my friends were into things like getting good grades, meeting the right boy, going to the dances, getting along with our teachers, having slumber parties, cheering the team on to victory, yelling really loud at spirit rallies, being friendly and saying hi to everyone we met in the hallway, that sort of stuff. In other words, we were having fun while you poor guys were doing all of that stupid testosterone stuff."

Although I have very few fond memories of my high school years, I think there is one really great thing about all graduations, be it from a high school or a college campus – the commencement speeches! And for all of you local graduates who just might thumb through the News-Ledger this week, here are a few excerpts from past graduation speeches that just might be worth checking out:

"Your time is limited, so don't waste it living someone else's life. Don't be trapped by dogma, which is living with the results of other people's thinking. Don't let the noise of other people's opinions drown out your own inner voice. And most important, have the courage to follow your own heart and intuition." -- Steve Jobs

"What I regret most in my life are failures of kindness." --George Saunders

"You have about 30,000 days in your life. You are already down to around 23,000. Don't waste any of them!" -- Drew Houston

"You can be either a passive victim of circumstance of an active hero of your own life. Action is the antidote to apathy and cynicism and despair. You will inevitably make mistakes. Learn what you can and move on. At the end of your days, you will be judged by your gallop, not your stumbles." -- Bradley Whitford

"Being pre-approved for a credit card does not mean you have to apply for it." -- Stephen Colbert

"Listen to your inner voice, as long as it doesn't lead to crime." -- Lisa Kudrow

"Darling, just change the channel. You are in control of the clicker. Don't replay the same bad, scary movie." -- Arianna Huffington

"Life is not about warming yourself by the fire. Life is about building the fire. And generosity is the match. If you want happiness for an hour, take a nap. But if you want happiness for a lifetime, help somebody." -- Larry Lucchino

"Respect people with less power than you." -- Tim Minchin

"Always remind yourself that you are stronger than you seem, braver than you believe, and smarter than you think." -- James Carville

"Your life will have many chapters, complete with crazy characters, villains and a plot you can't even imagine as you sit here today. It's going to be a lot like a 'Scooby Doo' episode." -- Shayin Alfonsi

> All the tough guys from high school seem to have disappeared -- perhaps ending up on more or less the same street corner, with no job or future and no one to impress and beat on except each other.

CITY: the new boom harkens to riverfront roots from p. 1

new housing, shopping and businesses.

"Our last great boom was mainly played out in Southport," Cabaldon told the crowd. "This is a significant change in the center of gravity to our community, returning us to our roots. This is a waterfront city, with deep roots connecting us to our sister city across the river."

The new boom is now occurring along that river, he said.

While helping to present a civic award to the local branch of Sacramento City College (just across the street from West Sacramento city hall) Cabaldon commented on the local jobs picture.

"Our unemployment is at a six year low," said the mayor. "However, our unemployment rate is still way too high. . . It isn't for lack of jobs. West Sacramento has more jobs than it has adults, by far."

But there's a "mismatch in still sets," he said. "That's why the West Sacramento campus is so fundamental to the future of our community, and to economic opportunities in our city."

Cabaldon also issued one dire warning for the evening. While he said he opposed the governor's "tunnel" project to send water to the south state, Cabaldon maintained that at least one "tunnel" alternative was even worse.

The mayor talked about what he called the "Garamendi option," which would pump Sacramento River water through the locks into the Port of West Sacramento's channel, sending it down the canal as a first step in a journey to Southern California. That option would entail construction of a massive pumphouse near the locks, on the city's valued riverfront. And, since water from the channel would be considered a drinking water source, it would necessarily lead to the closure of the port to ship traffic, he said.

This plan would be "a stake to the heart" of West Sacramento, said the mayor.

The "State of the City" dinner event was sponsored by the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce.

A police sergeant informed another officer on patrol that he had seen an object being thrown from the window of a Toyota Scion near Sacramento and Bryte avenues.

The 34-year old 4th Street man behind the wheel "informed me he did have an Air Soft pistol in the car next to his right leg, and I observed a .22 caliber round on the dash of the car."

The officer ordered the driver to step outside. The man was on searchable probation, and was searched and then placed in the patrol car. Just after that, the officer noticed a package of suspected heroin on the ground where the suspect had been searched – that item "had not been there before."

The package turned out to contain 3.4 grams of heroin. Also found were a glass smoking piple, needles, a scale, foil, a dirk (short knife), methadone and hydrocodone. The driver went to jail.

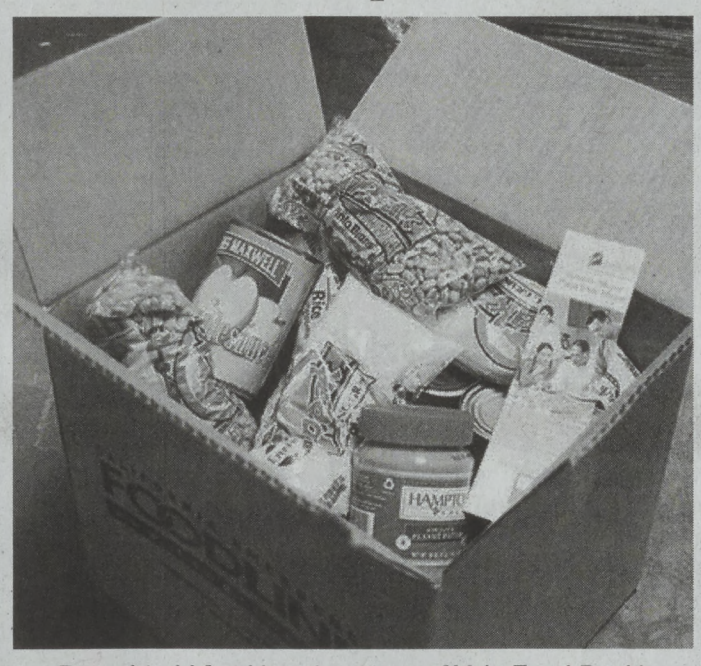
Food help for the drought-affected



Drought-aid food box (courtesy of Yolo Food Bank)

Yolo Food Bank has launched a program to help those in the county left unemployed or underemployed because of the state-wide drought. Many agricultural jobs, for example, have suffered during this year's water shortage.

Through the "Drought Food Assistance Program," the food bank will distribute prepacked food boxes during the month of June. The program may continue after June, provided state funding is still available

To qualify for drought food assistance participants must certify that they live in Yolo County and have either less work or no work because of the drought. Participants affected by the drought will receive a 25-pound box of nutritionally balanced, non-perishable food, designed to provide food for a household of four people for five days. The box will include such foods as apple sauce, canned vegetables, tomato sauce, vegetable and chicken noodle soup, peanut butter, dried pinto beans, rice, spaghetti, and oatmeal.

"We are glad to have the resources to help local families affected by California's severe drought," said Kevin Sanchez, Executive Director of Yolo Food Bank, an a press release.

To reach all areas of Yolo County, Yolo Food Bank will be working with six partner agencies to distribute meals at twelve sites.

West Sacramentans and Clarksburg residents may contact their local partner, Yolo County Children's Alliance, at (530) 757-5558 or www.yolokids.org.

In addition to the 11 distributions facilitated by the Food Bank's six partner agencies. Yolo Food Bank will pass out drought food on Friday mornings from its warehouse in Woodland (1244 Fortna Avenue, Woodland CA 95776). This distribution will occur from 7-8 a.m.

Contact Yolo Food Bank at (530) 668-0690 or visit www.yolofoodbank.org.

but perhaps unnecessarily long segments. Yet Donaldson remains a skilled storyteller who weaves in deep themes, and his love for not-often-heard words like "puissance" remains intact.

And the ending? Well, it wraps things up, but it probably won't satisfy all the fans of the series. Plus, a suspicious person might think there are still enough loose threads to forge another sequel. But for most, it is the finishing point. The wait is over, the story is done -- hope you enjoyed the journey.

Ralph Fiennes in 'The Grand Budapest Hotel'

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"The Grand Budapest Hotel" (R) -- Perched high in the mountains of an obscure eastern European nation, the Grand Budapest Hotel once hosted the most prestigious (and eccentric) of the old high society. In the creeping dawn of the second World War, "The Grand Budapest's" preening hotel concierge (Ralph Fiennes) and his faithful lobby boy fight for their lives and an odd-looking Renaissance painting.

Writer/director Wes Anderson forges on with his signature style -- painstaking detail, the quirkiest characters and a dry sense of humor. Anderson also makes use of his menagerie of talented stars appearing in smaller roles (Ed Norton, Tilda Swinton, Bill Murray and many more). Outshining all of this is the sincere and comedic performance from Fiennes.

"Ernest & Celestine" (PG) -- This beautifully animated French import follows the unlikely love between an artistic mouse and grouchy bear. In this world, the bears rule the snowy city streets, while mice must live in underground tunnels, fearing the hungry bears above. Celestine (voiced by Mackenzie Foy in the English version) is a mouse with a passion for painting who gets caught by a bear while she's on the surface. The two strike a mutual agreement, making them mismatched friends and fugitives from their respective societies.

It's a refreshing visual experience to see an unfamiliar animating style that still sings with the artistry and quality you'd expect from a top-tier Disney or Pixar film. Of course, the story is just as adorable as possible, with the artsy mouse unlocking the bear's love of music.

"Joe" (R) -- Nicolas Cage steps up in this violent drama that showcases the inherent talents of the otherwise oddball leading man. Joe (Cage) is hardworking guy in a backwoods town -- he has a heart of gold situated next to a boiling temper. Joe wants to do right and break the cycle, but he's always falling back into rage and outbursts. Joe hires 15-year-old Gary (Tye Sheridan) to his working crew, and takes the quiet boy under his wing. Gary's abusive father and Joe's protective nature could put Joe on a path to destruction or redemption.

"The Last Dark: The Last Chronicles of Thomas Covenant"
By Stephen R. Donaldson
(Penguin, $35)
By Chris Richcreek

Was it worth the wait? It's a question fans often have to ask themselves when they embark upon a multiple-book fantasy series. Robert Jordan's Wheel of Time series started in 1990 and eventually outlasted Jordan, who passed away in 2007. George R.R. Martin is under siege for his Song of Ice and Fire series, which began in 1996. Why? He's "only" five books into the series, and fans want new books NOW!

That brings us to "The Last Dark," the culmination of the Last Chronicles of Thomas Covenant and of the 10-book series. Author Stephen R. Donaldson has stated that he originally did not intend to go beyond the initial three books (published 1977-79), but here we are.

The final book has everything most fans of the series would want: main characters like Thomas Covenant, Linden Avery and her son, Jeremiah, and Lord Foul; beloved supporting characters like the Haruchai, Ranyhyn and giants; and surprises throughout, many of which harken back to earlier books in the series.

The plot? In short, the Worm of the World's End, an amazingly powerful force, is set to obliterate the Land and destroy the Arch of Time, allowing Lord Foul to escape the world and take on The Creator. The only ones standing in the way are Covenant, Avery, Jeremiah and a small troupe of the Land's defenders.

Sections of gripping action are followed by necessary,

"Authors Anonymous" (PG-13) -- In a hopeless group of aspiring authors, the least intelligent of them all is the first one to land a publishing agent. Henry (Chris Kline) wants to quit his day job and live the literary life, but he just can't explain the unexpected success of ditsy Hannah (Kaley Cuoco). It uses the mockumentary style of filmmaking popularized by Christopher Guest. "This is Spinal Tap" and "A Mighty Wind" put real comedic talent in front of the camera in a way that let bizarre characters step into the real world. This movie is the work of somebody who couldn't quite pull that off.

The Kitchen Diva

BY Angela Shelf Medearis

The Evolution of Dad

In 1966, when Lyndon Johnson designated an official Father's Day, the role of fathers mirrored one that had been passed down for generations. Dad headed out each day to an office, factory or field to provide for his family, while mom stayed home to care for the family.

Since then, families have experienced an evolution of diversity, reflecting the greater changes in the world around us. Perhaps the biggest difference since 1966 is that Dad is just as likely to be in the kitchen as Mom. At a time when many women have found their vocation outside the home, men have found new livelihoods, too.

It's interesting that the idea for a day to honor fathers came in 1910 from a woman who was raised by her widower father. Maybe it was precisely because William Smart had to step outside his designated role and take on new tasks that Sonora Smart Dodd saw the inestimable value of a flexible father, and thought that all fathers should be recognized.

Just like William Smart, modern dads can't be categorized, and in 2014, dads cook! They know how to braise and saute, and they know all about al dente and fine dice. So, on their special day, how do we honor these men who, for so many, are superheroes with a spatula?

The answer takes us back to the primitive roots of our origin -- fire. Men everywhere still love to play with it. Now, though, Epicurean Dad is looking way past salt and pepper to season his catch. How about creating a special seasoning mix recipe for Father's Day?

You can use these recipes for Spicy BBQ Rub and Italian Seasoning Mix as a dry rub, or you can incorporate them into the dressing or marinade recipe below. You also might want to try The Kitchen Diva! Herb and Spice Seasoning Mix (purchase via the Online Store at www.kitchendiva.org), which is a delicious food and flavor-enhancer specially formulated for people with diet-related illnesses.

Happy Father's Day!

SPICY BBQ RUB

3/8 cup garlic powder
3/8 cup packed brown sugar
3 tablespoons dried chives
3 tablespoons smoked paprika
6 teaspoons chili powder
6 teaspoons ground cumin
6 teaspoons onion powder
3 teaspoons Kosher salt
1 tablespoon sugar or stevia
1 teaspoon ground black pepper
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoons cayenne pepper

Mix all the ingredients in a bowl until well-combined. Store spices in an airtight container in a cool dark place. Label and date, as spices are best when used within six months.

To Create a Spicy Barbecue Marinade:

1/3 cup soy sauce
1/2 cup olive oil
1/3 cup fresh lemon juice
1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons steak sauce
2 tablespoons Spicy BBQ Rub (see recipe above)

1. Place the soy sauce, olive oil, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, steak sauce and BBQ Rub in a blender. Blend on high speed for 30 seconds until thoroughly mixed. (Makes 1 1/3 cups.)

2. Place meat into a re-sealable plastic bag. Pour marinade into the bag over the meat. Seal the bag, squeezing out as much air as possible.

3. Place bag into a bowl, and refrigerate for up to 8 hours for chicken, pork or beef, and 30 minutes for seafood. Cook meat or seafood as desired.

ITALIAN SEASONING MIX

This seasoning mix is delicious not only for Italian dishes, but on chicken, pork and fish as well.

1 tablespoon dried basil
1 tablespoon dried oregano
1 tablespoon dried rosemary
1 tablespoon dried sage
1 tablespoon dried thyme
1 tablespoon dried flat leaf Italian parsley
1 tablespoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon ground cloves

Pulse ingredients into a spice grinder or pulse in a food processor until it reaches the desired consistency. Store spices in an airtight container in a cool dark place. Label and date as spices are best when used within six months.

To Create an Italian Salad Dressing or Marinade:

This is a fabulous salad dressing or a delicious marinade for chicken, pork or seafood.

1/3 cup soy sauce
1/2 cup olive oil
1/3 cup fresh lemon juice
1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce
1/4 teaspoon hot pepper sauce (optional)
2 tablespoons Italian Seasoning Mix (see recipe above)

1. In a blender, combine soy sauce, olive oil, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, hot pepper sauce (optional) and Italian Seasoning Mix. Blend on high for 30 seconds until thoroughly mixed. (Makes 1 1/3 cups.)

2. Pour marinade over desired type of meat. Cover, and refrigerate for up to 8 hours for chicken or pork, and 30 minutes for seafood. Cook meat or seafood as desired.

CASE NUMBER PB14-72

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Mary Lou Reilly:

A Petition for Probate has been filed by Paul Pfannenstiel in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

The Petition for Probate requests that Paul Pfannenstiel be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
